National Training Scheme for the use of Thyroid Ultrasound by Endocrinologists and other Specialists in Thyroid Diseases

Friday 23rd April 2010 – 10.00 am to 5.00 pm
in The Postgraduate Medical Centre
Mayday University Hospital, Croydon, UK

In response to the continuing demand for this course we are running another course in April 2010.

This one-day course is an essential part of the national training scheme for certification for the use of ultrasound in the management of thyroid diseases by non-radiologists. The other essential components of the scheme, upon which guidance will be given, will be locally arranged.

The curriculum for training and certification for neck ultrasound by non-radiologists has been drawn up jointly by the British Thyroid Association and the Royal College of Radiologists. The programme is also supported by the Society for Endocrinology and approved by the Royal College of Physicians from whom CPD has been approved. The training programme will be appropriate for established clinicians who manage thyroid diseases and thyroid cancer and senior SpRs.

The workshop includes the essential core knowledge to proceed to Level 1 certification and includes sessions on the theory, principles and practice of ultrasound and its application to neck and thyroid examination and biopsy. As well as the appropriate theory content, the course will include practical hands-on sessions in neck ultrasound and ultrasound guided thyroid fine needle aspiration technique. The programme and details will be sent to successful applicants. Unsuccessful applicants may join the waiting list for the next course and will be given priority.
